Note from the President

When our industry comes together, we share and learn from each other. ACMA recognizes that our collective strength is gleaned from access to the latest information, technology and knowledge that will propel the composites manufacturing industry forward. We represent the largest audience of composites industry leaders and professionals in the world, and through your investment in our valued advertising, sponsorships and exhibit opportunities, you are showing your support of our industry and these vital education initiatives!
Thank you in advance for your commitment to our industry.

Tom Dobbins,
ACMA President

We are ACMA

The American Composites Manufacturers Association (ACMA) is the world’s largest composites industry trade group. By delivering invaluable education and events, access to market intelligence, and by working with regulators and legislators, ACMA serves as the center of expertise, engagement and an essential driver of industry growth and prosperity.
We represent small and large companies—manufacturers, suppliers and distributors, and affiliates—from every market segment in all 50 states as well as international members.
